WIPO/ECTK/SOF/01/2.10

ORIGINAL: English DATE: May2001

INTERNATIONALCONFER ENCEON INTELLECTUALPROPERT Y,THEINTERNET, ELECTRONICCOMMERCE ANDTRADITIONALKNOW LEDGE

organized undertheauspicesof
HisExcellencyMr.PetarStoyanov,PresidentoftheRepublicofBulgaria

by the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO)

incooperationwith the National Intellectual Property Association of Bulgaria

BoyanaGovern mentResidence Sofia,May29to31,2001

RECENTDEVELOPMENTS ANDCHALLENGESINTH EPROTECTIONOF INTELLECTUALPROPERT YRIGHTS(IPRS)

Contributionby
HisRoyalHighnessPrinceElHassanbinTalal
of TheHashemiteKingdomofJordan,Amman

THISPAPERWASPRESENTEDATACONFERENCE ¹BY HISROYALHIGHNESSPRINCEELHASSANBINTALALOF THEHASHEMITEKINGDOMOFJORDAN, AMMAN Theviewsexpressed in this paper are those of the author and do not represent an official positionofthe organizersoftheconference. The fact of publishing this paper does not represent an endorsement or support of theviews, facts or positions expressed therein.

 $^{{}^{1}\} Keynoteaddressby His Royal Highness Prince El Hassan} \qquad bin Talal of The Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan at the "Conference on Counterfeiting and Piracy: Enforcement of Intellectual Property Rights," Stockholm, April 23,2001.$

Excellencies.LadiesandGentlemen.

Itisex actlyamonthagotothedaythattheEuropeanUnionSummitwasheldinStockholm, onMarch23 -24,2001.Atthefinalpressconference,PrimeMinisterPerssonsaid:"The summitwasthefirstinaseriesofsummitseachofwhichwillrealizetheobjective s establishedinLisbon:thattheEUwouldbethemostcompetitiveeconomyoftheworldby theyear2010.InLisbonwelaidthefoundations.InStockholmwebuiltthefirstoftheten storeys."

IbelievethattheconferenceinStockholmtoaddressth eissueof"counterfeitingandpiracy" intheincreasinglyimportantfieldofintellectualpropertyisofgreatimportancetothe successfulcompletionoftheremainingninestoreys.

Allowmetoemphasizeattheoutsetthat, interms of the neweconomy characterizedby increasingglobalizationco -existingwiththedigitaldivide,witheconomicdisparities and withculturalconfrontations, the challenge of enforcing intellectual property rights (IPRs) cannotbeeffectivelyaddressedmerelythroughlegali nstrumentsandregionalorinternational legislation.Idonotmeantodowngradelaworunderestimateitsimportance.Rather,Iwish to emphasize the vital role of enforcement and of compliance, based on understanding and on the compliance of the compenlightenedself-interest. I tismyconsideredopinionthatcomprehensive cooperative programsforthebenefitofboththepublicandprivatesectorsneedtobeelaboratedinaseries ofinter -andintra -regionaldialogues. Publiced ucation and awareness in different parts of the worldiscalledfortodealwithmisconceptionsaboutIPRsprevailingamongstpolicy -makers and the general public. Fear and confusion regarding our common future is wides pread, as we witnessedonceagainlastweekinQuebec,intheformofprotestsandrio tsinconnectionwith freetradediscussionscoveringtheAmericas.

AswesayinrelationtothepeaceprocessintheMiddleEast,asuccessfuloutcomerequires dealingwiththerootcausesofconflict.Similarly,thesuccessfulenforcementofIPRs requirescombatingtherootcausesofcounterfeitingandpiracyandapro -activepromotionof a"cultureofcompliance."Itcallsforacomprehensive,holisticapproach.Anapproachthat recognizesnotonlytheroleofgovernmentsandregionalbodiesbutakothegreat contributionthatscience,R&Dandprivateenterprisecanmakefortheprogressofhumanity. Iampleasedtoseesomanyeminentrepresentativesoftheprivatesectoramongustodayand Iwishtoseizethisoccasiontolaunchapressingappea ltothem,particularlythe representativesofmultinationals,toundertakeaconcertedefforttohelpgovernmentsaswell asregionalandinternationalbodiestoaddresstherootcauses,topromoteaclimateof confidenceandtohelpdevelopglobalstrate giestocombatthetwinproblemsof counterfeitingandpiracy.

Icomefromaregion, which is sometimes referred to as a "near neighbour" to Europe. In the spirit of Europe. Mediterrane an Partenaria te founded in Barcelona six years ago, Iconsider myself not an outsider but rather a partner and a stakeholder in the ongoing process of European integration and construction of a single market.

HavingchairedthePolicyAdvisoryCommission(PAC)oftheWorldIntellectualProperty Organization(WIPO)forthe lasttwoyears,Irecallwithsatisfactionthe"WorldIntellectual PropertyDeclaration"issuedbyourCommissioninJunelastyear.Thatdeclaration highlightedamongotherthings,theinter -connectednessbetweenhumanprogress,intellectual property,c ulture,creativity,identityandeducation.

Weshouldavoidamyopicoruni -dimensionalviewofintellectualpropertyenforcement. The same applies to the globalization process. The normative as well as the material under pinning softheemer gingworld orders hould be considered and understood. Likewise, the rule of law, both at the national and international levels, must be addressed in a holistic manner.

Sociologistsusuallyrefertothehistorical "civilizing process" that enables societies to be peace with themselves and consequently with others. This process removed violence and brought to life the rule of law. But its continued application requires a strong civils ociety that up holds the values and norms, which in the first place under pinne dthe rule of law.

Inthecurrent"post -historical"times,intellectualpropertyrightsareapriorityagendaitemof industrializedcountries. This is because high -techhas become extremely information - intensive and digitized information lends itself easily to simple copying. Recentad vances in technology have paradoxically made such infringements much less difficult than was historically the case.

Thereisawidespreadbelief,however,thatdevelopingcountriesdonothaveaninterestin enforcingtheserights. Theyneedincentivesforprotectionofintellectualpropertyrights. OneapproachtodoingsohasbeentolinkIPRstootherareasofexternalrelations, such as trade. Tradesanctions are one tool. As a result, traderelated in tellectua lpropertyrights (TRIPS) emerged as a comprehensive multilateral agreement in this regard. The issues covered by TRIPS range from non -discrimination to duration, scope, licensing, transition period and disputes ettlement mechanisms.

Anotherimportant elementinrelationtointellectualpropertyrightsistheneedtoprovide whatissofrequentlyreferredtoasa"levelplayingfield."Therulesandtheirenforcement shouldbethesame;thereshouldbenodirectorindirectdiscriminationandnoones houldbe moreequalthantheothers.Otherwisetheincentivesforcreativityandinvestmentsinthe creativeindustrieswilldryup.

Someanalystshaverecommendedpoliticalpressureondevelopingcountriestospeedupthe processoftheiradoptingTRI PSAgreementstandards.Buttoberealistic,politicalor economicpressuresalonewouldnotsufficeiftheyarenotprecededbyadvocacy,education and persuasion. Considering the widerange of subjects to be covered by this Conference, it is myhopeth at the experts assembled here would lay the foundations for a comprehensive strategy of advocacy and compliance.

TheexperienceofHongKongisrelevant.TheDirectorofIntellectualPropertyinHong Kongaptlysummeditup: "Thepublichasapoorgra spofwhypiracyandcounterfeitingare wrong,andwhyprotectionofcopyright,trademarks,designsandpatentsrepresentasocial andeconomicbenefit....Thepublic'sgeneralawarenessofintellectualpropertyisoften expressedintermsofwhattheya renotallowedtodo.Thatistosay,theyunderstandthe subjectinnegativeterms,withundueweightonobligationsratherthanrights."

Inordertotransformnegativeperceptionsintoapositiveforce, weneedtoaddress, of course, therootcauses butthis is along -termprocess. In the immediate, a comprehensive process of education and persuasion could be gin. The EU can play a pivotal role in this regardifit were to initiate the process not only within the Union and, more importantly, the "can didate countries" but a taglobal level. The approach must cover producers and consumers a like; it must encompass the whole of the shrinking inter -dependent world we in habit.

Howtoachievethisinpracticalterms? Canweimaginea "civilizing process" within the context of globalization and the international rule of law? Canwe consider, as Hans Küng has done, a "globale thnic" that stresses rights as well as responsibilities, as a foundation for global society? I personally do not want to dwell on the elusive paradise of Global Civil Society (GCS). Nordo I wish to explore what scholars have referred to as "the promise and perilof Global Civil Society" nortor efert of the ongoing debate about the democratic deficiting lobalization as well as the widening international gaps in income and we alth.

ButIfinditextremelyrelevantforthepurposeofamorecomprehensiveframeworkforyour deliberationstorefertothestatementofMaryKalderoftheLondonSchoolofEconomics, whoinarecentartic leentitled "TheImplicationsoftheBattleofSeattle" stated "Isthisidea, of "civilizingglobalization" anewideologyorutopia? Therearetwoanswerstothis question. Oneisthathumansocieties needutopiastoavoidanarchy. Inasense, we could be saidtobecaughtbetweenthebarbarismofpastutopias... and the barbarismoftheabsence of utopiasi.e. the descent into incivility. The other is that global civils ociety is not a model or ablue print; it is a contested process, in which different views about the world's future can be expressed."

Notlongago, the World Banklauncheditsso -called "Comprehensive Development Framework (CDF)." Ipersonally had the privile getoparticipate with the President of the World Bank, Jim Wolfensohnandt he Archbishop of Canterbury in a parallel effort in the World Faiths' Development Dialogue (WFDD). The aim was to encompass different views about the world's future relating to governance, ethics, poverty, responsibilities and rights within the context of the global development agenda. The "World Intellectual Property Declaration" which was is sued by the Policy Advisory Commission of WIPO, and to which I referred ear 1 ier, aims to encourage a similar processin relation to intellectual property.

Sweden, inits current position of presidency of the European Council, is ideally suited to promote new thinking in this regard. The objective is to evolve a road map for an international dialogue on IPRs, in conjunction with TRIPS, to ensure a positive understa of IPRs by Global Civil Society.

AScandinavianperspectiveonworldissueshasalwayspromoted "civility." This has been feltinmany parts of the developing worldincluding myown area of the Middle East. But looking at the globe from Stockhol m, my part of the world becomes the Middle Southrather than the Middle East. From Stockholm the Middle East would instead be somewhere in Siberia, halfway to Japan! The view from Stockholm can help do away with stereotyping in more senses than one.

According to the EUC ommission's Communication of November 17,2000, as a follow the Green Paper on combating counterfeiting and piracy, the internal market suffers much from the on-going illegal activities. The Communication states that "the scale on which the phenomenon takes place in the Single Market is considerable and generally increasing. Counterfeiting and piracy... caused effections of trade and market disturbances, particularly when national differences in the means of enforcing in tellectual property rights are exploited."

Manypeopleinallpartsoftheworldviewglobalizationasadragonwithmanyheads. One ofthemistheglobalizationofinternational crimes and the accompanying failure by Statesto preventor eventor contain them. The globalization of organized crimehas made the task of combating counterfeiting and piracythat much harder. Consequently, the share of counterfeitingandpiracyhasreachedunprecedentedlevelsastheybecomeincreasingly linkedtoorganizedcrime.

YouareallfamiliarwiththefindingsoftheGreenPaper.Theshareofcounterfeitingand piracyinrelationtolegitimatetradeattheworldlevelhasreached46%inthesoftwaresector, dataprocessingindustry35%,theaudio -visualindustry25%andso on.TheNewEconomy anditstechnologies,whichhavecontributedinthefirstplacetotheexpansionoftradeand globalization,havebeenironicallythehardesthitbycounterfeitingandpiracy.Accordingto theCounterfeitingIntelligenceBureauestab lishedbytheInternationalChamberof Commerce(ICC),counterfeitingaccountsfor5to7%oftheworldtradeinvalueterms.

TheGreenPapermadeanimportantassertionaffectingthefutureofeveryonewhenitstated andIquote: "Owingtoitsscale, thephenomenonofcounterfeitingandpiracyhasa damagingeffectnotonlyonbusinesses, nationaleconomics and consumers, but on society as awhole. It is much more than ablight on the economic and social order a sit also affects publichealth and public ic security. The international community has not remained in active in the face of this threat but for various reasons the measures takens of arhave not succeeded in stunting the phenomenon's growth. "In myview, this Conference in Stockholm needs not only to identify the strong and weak points of the measures takens of ar, but also to suggest a blue print for future action. This is a matter of urgency not only within the EU and with regard to the "candidate countries" but generally for the world community at large.

Counterfeitingandpiracyarealsoharmfultothedevelopingcountriesbecausetwothirdsof theworldcommunityrisksbeingdeprivedofthestimulustodeveloptheirowncreative talent.Intellectualpropertylawistheretostimulatecre ativityandinventivenessbutthereisa direneedtostrikeaproperbalancebetweenthisgoalandthebroaderinterestsofthegeneral public.Thatbalancehastobestruckbythelegislators;onceitisdone,measuresmustbe takentoensurethatlaw isobeyedandthebalanceitrepresentsisrespected.Counterfeiting andpiracyaimatupsettingthatbalanceandarethusharmfultosocietyatlarge.Asforthe stimulusforcreativityandinventiveness,intellectualpropertyprotectionservesinaway the sameaimsastheNobelPrizewhichwassetuptopromoteandrecognizeimportant contributionstotheprogressofmankind.

Butunfortunately, these realities have become blurred by the rhetoric and emotions relating to theissueofintellectualpro pertyattheinternationallevel.JagdishBhagwatiwhohelpedin the policy - making process at the GATT during the nineties, has recently reminded us that regrettably"thedevelopingcountriesseeintellectualpropertyprotectionasadaggeraimedat them."Itisnotenoughtosaythatsuchaviewiswrong.Muchmoreneedstobedoneonthe basisofempathyandunderstanding. For example one cannot ask the developing countries to respectIPRsinordertopromotelocalcreativityanddevelopmentofnewid easandatthe sametimedolittleornothingtoreversethe 'braindrain'. If those trained and educated peoplewhocanbeinnovativeandcreativearesuckedawaybythedevelopedcountries, one shouldnotbesurprisedifthelocaleconomy, for the most partgreyeconomy, should have recoursetopiracy. The victim countries are not, in anyway, compensated for their loss. Insteadtheyareexpectedtobegratefulforbeingasourceofforeignexchangethrough remittances. Ihad suggested almost thirtyy earsagotothegeneralconferenceofILOtohelp createanInternationalLabourCompensatoryFacility(ILCF)asonepossiblewayof redressingthesituation. Almostnoprogress has been made at the international level although atnationallevel, somebil ateralarrangements for director indirect compensation are made fromtimetotime.

TheactionplanasannouncedbytheCommunicationofNovember17,2000,isconsideredby theCommissionasasupplementtotheinitiativeswithnon -membercountries.It isprecisely inthisareaofrelationswithnon -memberstates,thatcreativenewapproachescanplaya decisiveroleinensuringthesuccessofenforcementwithintheEUand,subsequently,serve asamodeltobeemulatedatagloballevelwhiletakingful lyintoaccounttheneedsand aspirationsofthedevelopingworldaswellasthespecificitiesofeachsituation.

PamelaSamuelsonoftheUniversityofCaliforniaatBerkleyhaspointedoutthatintellectual propertyisinfactjustonecomponentofint ellectualcapital. Thisistruefornations as much as for individual companies. Policies that nurture and promote intellectual capital are at the heart of successful developments trategies. These include human resources development, labor, employmenta ndent repreneurial policies. Therefore, what is needed is the integration of intellectual property rights with other relevant components of development. This is the way forward for a positive dialogue with the developing countries if we are to go beyond Bhagwati's metaphorical "dagger". In this connection, one should also be a rinmind that in the short term, the developing countries are bound to incurhuge losses if strict measures of enforcementare taken. Unless remedial measures are taken in time, the is situation could lead to aggravation rather than a melioration of the overall situation. The supporters and dependants of the greye conomy are bound to revolt, causing serious political and socio economic tensions.

Successfulenforcementstemsfromres pectratherthanfear. Respectinitsturn, callsfor comprehension and understanding. Cooperation programs with the candidate countries and eventually the world community at large should promote this through education, human resourced evelopment and culture, and not merely through negotiations of traderelations and legal reform. In this way the mistakes of Seattle can be avoided and the "dagger" replaced by the hand of partnership and cooperation.

Theheatofthedebatesincetheso -called"Battleof Seattle"has,however,madethetaskof communicationandcooperationmorechallenging.SeattleoccurredinNovember1999, exactlyadecadeafterthecollapseoftheBerlinWallinNovember1989.Thiscoincidenceof chronologypointstotheneedforag lobaldiscourseawayfromtheheatofconfrontationsand fromanoutdatedeast -west/north-southviewoftheworld.Otherwisewithinthisdecadea new,albeitlessvisible,"globalwall"willreplacethatofBerlin.

Itisimportantforthefutureofour "commonhumanity"thatwerecognizethataftertheend ofthecoldwar,weincreasinglyinhabit"asingleworldwithasingleagenda". ThatiswhyI believethatSweden,duringandafteritscurrentpresidencyoftheEU,canplayauniquerole inadialogu eacrossculturesina "civilizingprocess" forglobalizationandforthe internationalruleoflaw: adialoguetohelpdismantlethatglobalwallwhichisbeing unwittinglyerected.

Inthiscontext, it is worth recalling that the Presidency Conclusion softhe Stockholm summit stressed the need for a dialogue with civils ociety in the context of the 4th WTO Ministerial Conference scheduled for November 2001, in Doha. It was stated, interalia, that "This new round should respond to the interests of all WTO members, in particular developing countries, and should be prepared in a transparent and inclusive manner taking into account the need for a dialogue with civils ociety." Let mead that a dialogue is not a series of monologues. It is a process, whi chneed sto be tenaciously pursued.

In conclusion, allow metore call the initiative actively promoted by the Swedish Governmentto formulate a set of fundamental standards of humanity based on international law and the formulation of the set of thhumanrightsaswellasculturaland ethicalnorms. The purpose was to promote global action againstflagrantviolations. Now, a similar need is being recognized in order to contain the growingproblemofpiracyandcounterfeitingintherealmofintellectualproperty. May I suggestthatt hisConferenceshouldleadtoa"StockholmDeclaration"whichshouldserveas astandard -settingdocumentandasguidelinesforfutureregionalandglobalaction, which can bereviewedandimprovedaswemakeprogress. Shouldshortage of time and pressure of worknotallowforelaborationofsuchadocumentwithintheconferenceperiod,letme suggestthatoneoftheconclusionsoftheConferenceshouldbeanactivefollow -upbasedon the deliberations of this Conference and leading to a ``Stockholm Declara'' is a conference and leading to a conferencetion"duringthe periodofSwedishpresidency. This suggestion should be linked to the appeal Ilaunched earlierforaproactiverolebytheprivatesector, particularly the multinationals.

LadiesandGentlemen,inthepastIoftenreferredtotheneed for "anthropolitics" or politics for people. I would like to think that your efforts here in Stockholm will contribute to "anthroponomics" or economics for people and, that in this regard, not only the governments and regional bodies but also the multina tionals as well as non -government alactors and the civil society at large, will jointly play as active and positive arole as possible.

Iwishyouwellinyourdeliberations.

[Endofdocument]