

Applicable procedures to challenge and enforce rights in appellations of origin and geographical indications in the European Union

Information received on March 3, 2020

The procedure applicable in the territory of the European Union to challenge applications for protection of appellations of origin and geographical indications originating in a third country, before the EU decides on the protection thereof, is provided in Article 6 of Regulation (EU) 2019/1753, of the European Parliament and of the Council, on the action of the Union following its accession to the Geneva Act of the Lisbon Agreement on Appellations of Origin and Geographical Indications. After the EU decision on protection is taken (protection granted or refused) challenges in respect of such a decision may be introduced via the judicial ordinary procedures of the Member States of the European Union and the judicial procedures of the European Court of Justice.

The procedures applicable in the territory of the European Union to enforce rights in appellations of origin and geographical indications consist primarily in the administrative procedures of control Member States are obliged to perform in accordance with the provisions on control in the respective regulations providing for a protection scheme to Geographical Indications (Protected Designation of Origin, Protected Geographical Indications and Geographical Indications)¹. Please find below (hyperlinks) the public list of Member States' Competent Authorities responsible for the administrative procedures to be used to enforce rights in Protected Designation of Origin and Protected Geographical Indications in the territory of the Union, for food and wine sectors respectively²:
