

Thierry Calame

Partner and Head of Intellectual Property Group
Lenz & Staehelin
Deputy Reporter General, AIPPI
Switzerland

Thierry Calame is a partner and head of the Intellectual Property Practice Group of Lenz & Staehelin in Switzerland. He has extensive experience of a wide range of intellectual property matters, particularly involving patents and trademarks. Mr Calame's significant contentious practice includes numerous patent, trademark and other IP-related litigation and arbitration. His non-contentious experience includes advising on licences, the intellectual property aspects of a range of other transactions as well as pharmaceutical regulatory law. Mr Calame has a particular focus on clients in the pharmaceutical, biotechnology, chemical and food and beverages industries. He has also considerable experience in acting for clients in fields such as the mechanical and electrical technologies, software, mobile communication systems, spectroscopy as well as household goods and textile industry.

Mr Calame holds a degree in Chemistry from the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology and a Doctorate in Law from the University of St. Gallen, Switzerland. His doctoral thesis focused on the subject of biotech patents. A visiting scholar at the Max-Planck-Institute in Munich, Germany in 1996, he held a similar position at the University of Santa Clara Law School in the USA in 1998. Mr Calame is currently Deputy Reporter General of the International Association for the Protection of Intellectual Property (AIPPI) and a member of the Board of Directors of the Swiss group of AIPPI. He is a regular lecturer on intellectual property issues and has written on a wide range of intellectual property topics, notably in patent law. He speaks English, German and French.

Lenz & Staehelin is the largest Swiss law firm with over 170 lawyers and with offices in Zurich, Geneva and Lausanne. The firm offers full services in all areas of business law for Swiss and international clients. Lenz & Staehelin's intellectual property practice is comprehensive, encompassing all aspects of intellectual property including patents, trademarks, geographical indications, copyright, designs, licensing, and related areas such as domain names, unfair competition law, and advertising and marketing law.